Sommario/riassunto	Cet ouvrage est le fruit d'une cooperation tres fructueuse entre le departement de sociologie de l'Universite de Pekin et le CNRS, mise en place dans le cadre du Programme International de Cooperation Scientifique (PICS) de l'INSHS du CNRS de 2008 a 2011 (Nouvelles frontieres des sociologies economiques chinoise et francaise : un etat des lieux), co-dirige par les professeurs Laurence Roulleau-Berger et Liu Shiding. Dans cet ouvrage, sociologues francais et chinois croisent leurs regards sur differents objets de recherche dans le champ de la sociologie economique internationale. Il s'agit du premier ouvrage academique sur la confrontation entre sociologie economique chinoise - deja largement meconnue dans le monde - et sociologie economique francaise. Il ouvre des perspectives theoriques et methodologiques qui renouvellent nos facons de construire des objets de recherche lies au travail, a l'emploi, aux systemes productifs, a l'innovation economique, aux migrations economiques ... In this volume, French and Chinese sociologists share specific interests and, for the first time, confront their perspectives on different objects of research: local government, social networks and intermediate regulation; phenomena of domination and resistance in labour markets; gender and labour; markets, values and conventions; trust, economic exchange and social interaction; innovation and productive networks. Although, initially, American influences played a major role in their construction, the new French and Chinese economic sociologies have progressively attained autonomy and elaborated situated knowledge. In both China and France, the boundaries of economic sociology have been traced according to specific scientific trajectories, a diversity of positions and terrain-based science. They define "specific" and "shared" theoretical and methodological spaces. As the product of pioneering academic research, this work offers an innovative intersecting approach to French and Chinese ..
