Sommario/riassunto	To what extent does our conceptual apparatus allow us to understand and describe changes in law? What can an observation of law in its dynamic moments contribute to our research activity, from an analytical point of view? The objective of the volume is to attempt a first approach to the analysis of an unusual topic: law in motion. The studies gathered here analyze some specific legal experiences of the law movement, taking into account three particular profiles: the circulation of persons, the circulation of law (referring both to knowledge, to legal cultures, and to regulatory options), the circulation of rights (referring to the multiplicity of forms of legal protection and their dissemination).
