Sommario/riassunto	This work is divided into three parts. In the first, we show the components of the agro-industrial complex, with the exception of rural poultry producers. The analysis shows the link between the installation of the poultry complex with the import of technology from advanced capitalist countries and the importance of multinationals installed in the country. In the second part, we analyse the relationship between rural producers and large companies and sectors of the agro-industrial complex. Finally, in the third part, we study the forms of political representation that characterize the different sectors that make up the poultry complex. [excerpt taken from the book's introduction].
