Sommario/riassunto	Cet article tente d'eclairer la situation contemporaine du Quebec en matiere d'immigration par un rappel historique de l'evolution des quelque quarante dernieres annees. On souligne le fait que l'integration resolue et massive des immigrants a la communaute francophone du Quebec est un phenomene nouveau, celui d'une seule generation. Suit une analyse de la colere publique qui s'est manifestee au Quebec, surtout au cours de l'annee 2007, sur la question des accommodements raisonnables. Un derapage engendre par une distorsion perceptuelle. Enfin, differents modeles d'integration sont confrontes et des propositions sont avancees. This article aims at shedding some light on Quebec's contemporary situation in matters of immigration. With a historical overview of the last forty years, it appears that a firm policy of massive integration of immigrants into the Francophone community is a new phenomenon, involving just one generation. Following is an analysis of the public anger that took place around 2007 on the issue of reasonable accommodations. This appears to correspond, in great part, to illfated misperceptions. Finally, different models of integration are confronted to Quebec's identity and some proposals are made.
