

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910136562403321
Autore	Leader Pauline
Titolo	And no birds sing // Pauline Leader ; Mara Mills and Rebecca Sanchez, editors
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Washington, District of Columbia : , : Gallaudet University Press, , 2016 ©2016
ISBN	1-56368-669-4
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (281 pages) : illustrations
Classificazione	BIO026000
Disciplina	813/.52
Soggetti	Women authors, American - 20th century Deaf women - United States
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Sommario/riassunto	"Originally published in 1931, this memoir is an unflinching look at the life experience of a woman struggling with identity and isolation. In harrowing yet lyrical prose, Pauline Leader assails her poverty and Jewish heritage and longs to fit in with her "American" peers. Born in 1908, she describes her home life as the daughter of Polish immigrants who run a butcher's market and boarding houses in a small New England town. Frequent beatings and sinister remarks issued by her parents puncture her childhood. At the age of 12, following a long illness, Leader becomes deaf--yet another stigma to bear. As a young adult she journeys to New York City where she struggles to find work in factories and sweatshops and seeks social acceptance among the artists and prostitutes of Greenwich Village. For a time she is held in a reformatory for "wayward" girls. Her strong will and fierce independence are often thwarted by severe self-doubt, but through it all, she finds solace through her writing. A new scholarly introduction provides a modern framework for understanding Leader and her times. She persevered and became a published poet and novelist, often drawing on the experiences offered up here. Compelling and evocative, And No Birds Sing deftly reveals a complex, intelligent spirit toiling in a brutal world"--

