Sommario/riassunto	In this book we present the texts whose authorship belongs to those who have offered thematic modules or master classes in the Second and the Third Summer School developed by the Center for Studies on Criminal Law and Latin American Criminal Procedure (CEDPAL) of the Georg-August- Universität Göttingen. The contributions have been grouped according to two unique categories: In the first part, entitled Criminal Sciences in and from Germany, there are written texts based on German theory, regulations and jurisprudence, specifically dedicated to issues in this context. In the second part, called Criminal Sciences: Dialogues between Germany and the rest of the world, those works are grouped in which the criminal sciences, although they are worked from the German context, aim at cultural and international interrelations and the dialogue between different traditions legal-criminal. Finally, two brief tributes dedicated to Professors Winfried Hassemer and Horst

Schüler-Springorum stand out. Both the compilation presented, as well as the structure from which it is developed, accurately reflect the spirit of the Summer School, designed both to disseminate the current state of German criminal sciences, and to build a bridge of exchange and academic opening with Spanish-speaking and Portuguese-speaking jurists.
