Sommario/riassunto

Proletarian and Gendered Mass Migrations connects the 19th- and 20th-century labor migrations and migration systems in global transcultural perspective. It emphasizes macro-regional internal continuities or discontinuities and interactions between and within macro-regions. The essays look at migrant workers experiences in constraining frames and the options they seize or constraints they circumvent. It traces the development from 19th-century proletarian migrations to industries and plantations across the globe to 20th- and 21st-century domestics and caregiver migrations. It integrates male and female migration and shows how women have always been present in mass migrations. Studies on historical development over time are supplemented by case studies on present migrations in Asia and from Asia. A systems approach is combined with human agency perspectives. Contributors include Rochelle Ball, Shelly Chan, Dennis D. Cordell, Michael Douglass, Christiane Harzig, Dirk Hoerder, Muhamad Nadrattuzaman Hosen, Hassène Kassar, Kamel Kateb, Amarjit Kaur, Kiranjit Kaur, Gijs Kessler, Akram Khater, Elizabeth A. Kuznesof, Vera Mackie, Adam McKeown, Tomoko Nakamatsu, Ooi Keat Gin, Aswatini Raharto, Marlou Schrover, and Patcharawalai Wongboonsin.

| Sommario/riassunto | Tentes, caravanes, mobil homes, cabanes, cabanons, kiosques, chalets, cabines... les abris convertis ou créés à des fins ludiques sont une réalité bien ancrée dans nos vies. À un tel point que ces objets d'une architecture pensée comme temporaire, provisoire, voire précaire, dépassent les frontières de la culture occidentale et traversent les âges. D'un point de vue anthropologique, l'abri de loisirs dévoile un habitus manuel inscrit au plus profond de nous. Il est bricolé, jardiné, techniquement agi et agissant. Sur le plan historique, ces objets divers rejouent le passage du nécessaire à l'accessoire, du sérieux au futile, dans une société des loisirs où la chasse, la pêche, la cueillette et plus largement toute une gamme d'exercices physiques sont devenus secondaires. Depuis la fin du xviii^e siècle, ils n'ont cessé de se multiplier dans un ensemble de dispositifs pensés pour contrôler les masses, mais aussi dans des contextes de ruse avec les logiques de l'habitat. Cet héritage déjà long rejoue aujourd'hui les manières de penser la société. Les abris s'adressent à différents âges de la vie, ils semblent avoir un sexe et se métamorphoser selon la condition sociale de son occupant. Dans cette rencontre entre formes d'habitats et loisirs se dessinent de multiples prises sur le monde, croisant destins individuels et collectifs, rejouant la fragile réversibilité de la nature et de la culture. |
