Sommario/riassunto	The focus of this research is to analyze the social and spatial transformations of a bounded area, the neighborhood of Elmada, whose most noteworthy factor has been the perpetual migration flows since its emergence as a neighborhood in the 19th century. According to the authors, the functional transformation Elma-da is currently going through needs the explanations history can provide in order to be apprehended in full. Interdisciplinary, the research blends sociological, anthro-pological and historical approaches and combines micro and macro perspectives.
