Record Nr. UNINA9910141645503321

Autore Cohen Tom <1953->

Titolo Theory in the era of climate change . volume 1 telemorphosis / / edited

by Tom Cohen

Pubbl/distr/stampa Open Humanities Press, 2012

[Ann Arbor]:,: Open Humanities Press,, 2012

ISBN 9781607852360

9781607852377

Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (314 pages) : digital, PDF file(s)

Collana Critical Climate Change

Disciplina 363.7

Soggetti Climatic changes

Global warming Environmental policy

Earth & Environmental Sciences Meteorology & Climatology

Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese

Formato Materiale a stampa

Livello bibliografico Monografia

Note generali Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph

Nota di bibliografia Includes bibliographical references.

This volume gathers notable critics and philosophers to engage the predominant impasse of an emerging era of climate change and ecocatastrophic acceleration: that is, how to conceptual and critical practices inherited from 20th century master-thinkers—who took no account of these emergences and logics—alter, adapt, mutate, or undergo translation at the current moment. Rather than assume that the humanities and philosophic practices of the past routed in the rethinking of language and power are suspended as irrelevant before mutations of the biosphere itself, Telemorphosis asks how, in fact, the latter have always been imbricated in these cognitive and linguistic practices and remain so, which is also to ask how a certain violence returns, today, to entirely different fields of reference. The writers in the volume ask, implicitly, how the 21st century horizons that exceed any political, economic, or conceptual models alters or redefines a bioethics, care, species invasion, war, post-carbon thought, series of key topoi. These range through figures of sexual difference, ecotechnics, time, and so on. As such, the volume is also a dossier on what metamorphoses await the legacies of "humanistic" thought in adapting to, or rethinking, the other materialities that impinge on contemporary "life as we know it."