

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910148586703321
Autore	Longo Davide <1971->
Titolo	Bramard's case // David Longo ; translated from the Italian by Silvester Mazzearella
Pubbl/distr/stampa	MacLehose Press
ISBN	1-68144-441-0
Classificazione	FIC022020FIC000000
Disciplina	853/.92
Soggetti	Detectives - Italy - Turin Murder - Italy - Turin FICTION / Mystery & Detective / Police Procedural FICTION / General Detective and mystery stories.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Sommario/riassunto	"Corso Bramard lives in the mountains not far outside Turin. A former police inspector, he has kept out of the public eye for twenty years following the brutal killings of his wife and daughter. Periodically, the at-large murderer taunts Bramard, sending him letters containing snippets of song lyrics by Leonard Cohen. Bramard keeps them all, and spends his days haunted by twin obsessions: one, to find the man who destroyed his life, and the other, to end his own life altogether. Until the day he receives the killer's latest communication, and everything changes--the murderer may have finally made a mistake, giving Bramard a vital clue about where to begin the hunt. Aided by his former colleagues and by Isa, an unusual cop with a highly unorthodox style, Corso sets out to catch his monster at last"--