Sommario/riassunto	This book, coordinated by Dominique Groux, Eline Gamess, Gabriel Langouët, and Nicole Mosconi, explores gender inequalities in family, education, and work settings. It presents research findings and comparative analyses from various countries, highlighting persistent gender disparities despite advancements. The book discusses the societal and cultural factors contributing to these inequalities and emphasizes the need for political action to address them. It is intended for scholars, educators, and policymakers interested in gender studies and education.
