| Sommario/riassunto | Ten million Americans face certain death. The culprit: a One-A-Day vitamin with lethal side effects. There is no cure. There is no hope. With only weeks to live--an antidote materializes. A psychopath gains control of the cure. A Miami heiress and a Brazilian, with a criminal background, who find attraction and trust equally challenging, join forces to recover the antidote. A professional hit man Jillian Summer, a beautiful young heiress to a pharmaceutical empire, and a model, meets Orlando Jones a handsome former drug dealer who has become a legitimate Brazilian businessman who now manufactures the revolutionary new One-A-Day vitamin "Vita-Bliss" for her father's company. There is an immediate and compelling attraction between - one that is temporarily sidelined by friction between Jillian's father, Jack Summer, and Orlando as they argue over the future of Vita-Bliss. Author - Michael Brown is a renowned Film Editor who, during his career has edited more than fifty Movies-of-the-Week (including eight for HBO), ten Mini-Series and eight Theatrical Features. On two of those Mini-Series he was also the Associate Producer. Over the last ten years he has won 3 Emmy Awards, an Eddie Award, as well as receiving 8 additional nominations. He is a member of the Editors Guild, the Academy of Cinema Editors, the Director's Guild of American and the Writers' Guild of America, and has sold a total of 10 scripts to CBS-TV, NBC-TV and ABC-TV.
