Sommario/riassunto	This book, coordinated by Maudy Piot, addresses the societal perceptions and challenges faced by individuals with disabilities, particularly focusing on women. It highlights the mental barriers imposed by society rather than the physical ones, advocating for a new ethical perspective that recognizes the capabilities and citizenship of disabled individuals. The work is presented in collaboration with the Association Femmes pour le Dire, Femmes pour Agir, which aims to combat discrimination and affirm the full citizenship of women with disabilities. The book emphasizes the importance of viewing disabilities as a form of diversity and richness, rather than a weakness, and encourages societal support for autonomy and inclusion. It is intended for readers interested in social justice, disability rights, and women's issues.
