Sommario/riassunto	Ecdotic Practices of Literary Modernity is a magazine available online on the website of the University of Milan. In recent years, studies on the transmission of texts have increased and this has made it necessary to confront the innovations introduced in the edition of modern literary texts. The magazine will investigate, "through the solicitations of the philology of printed texts and copyright philology, of the methods of transmission of literary texts through the choices of publishers, understood both in the strictest sense of philology, as curators of texts, both in the broader range of book producers ". This initiative originates from the annual Seminar which, with the title «Ecdotic practices», has been held since 2008 at the University of Milan.
