Sommario/riassunto

L'Afrique noire fait actuellement face à un défi majeur : la croissance et le développement dans toutes ses dimensions. Mais pour y parvenir elle doit passer, à l'instar de l'Europe ou du Sud-Ouest asiatique, par la condition sine qua non de la renaissance. Les présentes analyses et réflexions, pluridisciplinaires, démontrent le rôle de la science, en particulier de la science sociale, selon le mot de Durkheim, dans cette émergence. Ces considérations insistent sur l'importance des sciences humaines en Afrique noire et se penchent sur certaines expériences locales, porteuses de renaissance.
