

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910155306803321
Autore	Denton Robert E., Jr.
Titolo	Social Fragmentation and the Decline of American Democracy [[electronic resource]] : The End of the Social Contract // by Robert E. Denton, Jr., Benjamin Voth
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cham : , : Springer International Publishing : , : Imprint : Palgrave Macmillan, , 2017
ISBN	3-319-43922-7
Edizione	[1st ed. 2017.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (X, 195 p.)
Collana	Sports Economics, Management and Policy
Disciplina	320.01
Soggetti	Political theory Political communication Democracy Political Theory Political Communication US Politics United States Politics and government
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	A Divided and Selfish Nation: A United States of America No More -- Democracy and the "Social Contract:" Prescription for Freedom and Equality -- Generational Change and Social Values -- The Postmodern Culture and Political Implications -- The Epistemological Poisoning of America -- De-mock-racy: Comic Framing as Political Wrecking Ball -- Making Black Lives Matter Today -- What Can We Do? An American Renaissance Predicated on Communicative Idealism -- The Practice of Politics Today and the Greater Tomorrow.
Sommario/riassunto	This book explores the social and political implications of what the authors identify as the decline of the social contract in America and the rise of a citizenry that has become self-centered, entitled, and independent. For nearly two decades, America has been in a "cultural war" over moral values and social issues, becoming a divided nation geographically, politically, socially, and morally. We are witnessing the decline of American Democracy, the authors argue, resulting from the erosion of the idea of the social contract. Especially since the “baby boomers,” each successive generation has emphasized personal license to the exclusion of service, social integration, and the common good. With the social contract, the larger general will becomes the means of establishing reciprocal rights and duties, privileges, and responsibilities as a basis of the state. The balkanization of America has changed the role of government from one of oversight to one of dependency, where individual freedom and responsibility are sacrificed for group equality. This book examines the conditions of this social fragmentation, and offers ideas of an American Renaissance predicated on communicative idealism.
