Sommario/riassunto

"Frontiers in Sustainable Cities aims to develop a multi-disciplinary academic approach to life in contemporary and future urban environments. The journal publishes rigorously peer-reviewed, cutting-edge research on a broad range of topics, from engineering and urban studies to social sciences, with a focus on achieving sustainable living processes within future urban landscapes (in line with SDGs). To achieve resilience, environmental health, people's inclusion, equality and healthy living in the face of the severe economical and environmental challenges facing the world today, international collaboration across all disciplines is required, including aspects on energy engineering, human geography and economics, architecture, governance and political science, public health, natural and behavioural science."

Sommario/riassunto

This volume, 'Allenby in Egypt,' is the second in a series by Field-Marshal Viscount Wavell, detailing the life and career of Field-Marshal Viscount Allenby. The book focuses on Allenby's role as High Commissioner in Egypt from 1919 to 1925, a period marked by significant political change and the country's push for independence. It provides an in-depth look at Allenby's leadership and administrative skills during a complex time in Egyptian history, highlighting his impact on British-Egyptian relations. Wavell, drawing on personal knowledge and extensive research, aims to present a fair and accurate portrait of Allenby, countering previous accounts lacking comprehensive insights. The book is intended for readers interested in military history, British foreign policy, and Allenby's legacy in Egypt.
