Sommario/riassunto	Life is a journey. But this is not only in a geographical sense where some seem to travel much further than others! It also includes growing and shaping our character, sense of vocation and abilities. But where is it pointing us? The Bible describes a personal relationship with God as essential to life as He intended us to experience. However, such a 'faith journey' also means that we are finding out about ourselves. The intriguing Book of Ruth in the Old Testament describes this woman's journey, physically, emotionally and spiritually. As well as discovering God working in her life 'behind the scenes' she also finds her God-gifted identity... an awareness that is relevant and important to us. These chapters explore some of the ways in which God brought this affirmation into her life. Questions are provided to apply the lessons of Ruth to ourselves, making this material suitable for both individual reflection and small-group discussion.
