Sommario/riassunto	Lane Freeman supposed there were worse places to be dumped than a place named Christmas Valley. After being ejected from the foster care system, he spent the past five years hitchhiking and moving around. But six months of a steady job at Tal's Bar and Grill, an apartment, and even a three-legged cat have him almost ready to risk putting down a few roots when Tal's brother comes home for the holidays. Dallas firefighter Trey Jenkins reluctantly accepts that Lane isn't like the other drifters who've come through his brother's place. A fragile attraction begins to bloom between them in spite of the many reasons they each have to fight it. Trey wants to give Lane a family, but experience has taught Lane to depend on no one but himself. Will winter love burn hot in the town called Christmas Valley or will Lane return to his wandering ways?"
