Sommario/riassunto

Moscow to Stalingrad: Decision in the East, authored by Earl F. Ziemke and Magna E. Bauer, is a detailed historical account of the German-Soviet conflict during World War II. This volume focuses on the critical period from the initial German invasion of the Soviet Union in 1941 to the pivotal Battle of Stalingrad in 1942-1943. The book examines military strategies, battles, and the shifting dynamics between the Axis and Soviet forces. It provides an in-depth analysis of military tactics, strategic decisions, and the significant impact of leadership figures like Hitler and Stalin on the course of the war. This work serves as the second in a projected three-volume series exploring the Eastern Front, offering insights into both German and Soviet military operations. It is intended for historians, military enthusiasts, and readers interested in World War II history.
