Sommario/riassunto	Depuis 1993, un groupe interdisciplinaire réunit à l'Université de Provence d'Aix des chercheurs travaillant tous sur le XVIe siècle et dans des domaines différents : histoire, littérature française, histoire des arts, littérature italienne, littérature espagnole. Ils livrent ici leurs regards croisés sur le thème « Prendre une ville au XVIe siècle ». Il ne s'agit pas d'un traité d'art militaire ou de poliorcéétique, mais d'une réflexion sur un champ vaste qui va du factuel à l'imaginaire : une façon de rompre le carcan du cloisonnement en disciplines et de restituer, si possible, la richesse d'une réalité toujours difficile à saisir et toujours grosse de promesses : ne reste-t-il pas encore bien des citadelles à prendre ?
