

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910219970003321
Autore	Ochmanek David A.
Titolo	America's security deficit : addressing the imbalance between strategy and resources in a turbulent world // David Ochmanek [et al.]
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Santa Monica, CA : , : RAND Corporation, , 2015 ©2015
ISBN	0-8330-9154-9
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (35 pages) : color charts
Collana	Strategic Rethink
Disciplina	355/.033573
Soggetti	National security - United States National security - United States - Economic aspects World politics - 21st century Security, International - 21st century Terrorism - Prevention - International cooperation - 21st century United States Defenses United States Armed Forces Appropriations and expenditures United States Foreign relations 21st century Decision making United States Armed Forces Operational readiness United States Strategic aspects
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references.
Nota di contenuto	America's security deficit -- Changing demands on defense -- Readiness -- Enhancing allied defenses -- Choices for sizing the defense budget.
Sommario/riassunto	"This report is the second in RAND's ongoing Strategic Rethink series, in which RAND experts explore the elements of a national strategy for the conduct of U.S. foreign and security policy in this administration and the next. The report analyzes defense options available to the United States in responding to the re-emergence of a belligerent Russia, the seizure of significant territory in Iraq and Syria by violent extremists, growing Chinese military power and assertiveness, and other threats to U.S. security and interests. It focuses on ways that the United States might adapt military instruments to meet these emerging challenges, assessing in broad terms the cost of defense investments commensurate with the interests at stake. The report argues that currently projected levels of defense spending are insufficient to meet the demands of an ambitious national security strategy"--Publisher's description
