

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910255444503321
Autore	Bloch Alexia
Titolo	Sex, Love, and Migration : Postsocialism, Modernity, and Intimacy from Istanbul to the Arctic // Alexia Bloch
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Ithaca : , : Cornell University Press, , 2017 ©2017
ISBN	1-5017-1315-9 1-5017-0941-0
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource : illustrations (black and white), maps (black and white)
Classificazione	MS 3050
Disciplina	331.4086/240947
Soggetti	Post-communism - Former Soviet republics Transnationalism - Turkey Transnationalism - Former Soviet republics Women foreign workers - Turkey Women foreign workers - Former Soviet republics Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Previously issued in print: 2017.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Magnificent centuries and economies of desire -- Gender, labor, and emotion in a global economy -- We are like slaves, who needs capitalism? : intimate economies and marginal, mobile households -- Strategic intimacy, "real love," and marriage -- Intimate currencies : mobilizing sex "without hang-ups," love, and romance -- Other mothers and a transnational nurturing nexus.
Sommario/riassunto	"Sex, Love, and Migration goes beyond a common narrative of women's exploitation as a feature of migration in the early twenty-first century, a story that features young women from poor countries who cross borders to work in low paid and often intimate labor. Alexia Bloch argues that the mobility of women is marked not only by risks but also by personal and social transformation as migration fundamentally reshapes women's emotional worlds and aspirations. Bloch documents how, as women have crossed borders between the former Soviet Union and Turkey since the early 1990s, they have forged new forms of intimacy in their households in Moldova, Ukraine, Belarus, and Russia, but also in Istanbul, where they often work for years on end. Sex, Love, and Migration takes as its subject the lives of post-Soviet migrant women employed in three distinct spheres--sex work, the garment trade, and domestic work. Bloch challenges us to decouple images of women on the move from simple assumptions about danger, victimization, and trafficking. She redirects our attention to the aspirations and lives of women who, despite myriad impediments, move between global capitalist centers and their home communities"--
