Sommario/riassunto

À l'article 4 du traité signé à Paris le 10 février 1763 entre la Grande-Bretagne et la France, on peut lire que « Sa Majesté Très Chrétienne cède et garantit à sadite Majesté britannique, en toute propriété, le Canada avec toutes ses dépendances ». Vingt ans plus tard, de nouvelles négociations franco-britanniques, commencées en avril 1782, se terminent le 3 septembre 1783 par la signature du second traité de Paris, dans lequel la Grande-Bretagne reconnaît l'indépendance des États-Unis d'Amérique. Ainsi, en l'espace de deux décennies, ces deux traités délimitent un tournant majeur dans l'histoire de l'Amérique du Nord. Ils marquent l'aboutissement de plusieurs siècles de rivalités coloniales entre Français et Anglais en Amérique du Nord et annoncent le point de départ d'un « monde atlantique nouveau » dont les États-Unis deviendront le centre. Ce livre entreprend de dresser un inventaire de tous les aspects de cette période de conflits et de négociations : la guerre au xviii^e siècle et la marine française, la diplomatie et l'art de la paix, les ambitions impériales françaises hors d'Amérique du Nord, le devenir des populations confrontées à de nouvelles lois et règles de vie : Canadiens, Amérindiens, Anglo-américains.

Sommario/riassunto

This open access book sets out the contours of feminist political ecology (FPE) as a major contribution to ongoing debates in the field. In an innovative methodological twist, the edited book engages the reader in conversations that have emerged from the multi-sited and cross-generational dialogues of the Well-Being Ecology Gender cOMmunities (WEGO) network over the last four years. The conversations explore topics that range from climate change and extractivism, to body politics and health, degrowth, care and community well-being. The authors reflect on their collective learning process as they map out the new directions of FPE research and analysis. The chapters highlight WEGO transnational/transdisciplinary conversations with local communities, social movements and different academic spaces. The book foregrounds the ethics of doing feminist work inside and outside academe and brings to life the importance of doing reflexive research aware of situated historical and contemporary geographical contours of power. Wendy Harcourt is Professor of Gender, Diversity and Sustainable Development at the International Institute of Social Studies of the Erasmus University Rotterdam in The Hague, The Netherlands and was Coordinator of the WEGO Innovative Training Network (2018-2022). Ana Agostino is Lecturer at the Faculty of Culture at the University CLAEH, Uruguay, and at FLACSO. Rebecca Elmhirst is Professor of Human Geography at the University of Brighton, UK. Marlene Gómez is PhD candidate of the WEGO Innovative Training Network at the Freie Universität Berlin, Germany. Panagiota Kotsila is 'Juan de la Cierva' Fellow at the Institute for Environmental Science and Technology (ICTA), at the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, Spain, and Coordinator of the Political Ecology research line at the Barcelona lab for Urban Environmental Justice and Sustainability (BCNUEJ). .
