

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910300478903321
Autore	Zhu Dan
Titolo	China and the International Criminal Court / / by Dan Zhu
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Singapore : , : Springer Nature Singapore : , : Imprint : Palgrave Macmillan, , 2018
ISBN	9789811073748 9811073740
Edizione	[1st ed. 2018.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (298 pages)
Collana	Governing China in the 21st Century, , 2730-6976
Disciplina	345.01
Soggetti	Asia - Politics and government International criminal law International law Asian Politics International Criminal Law Sources and Subjects of International Law, International Organizations
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Includes index.
Nota di contenuto	1 Introduction -- 2 China and International Judicial Bodies -- 3 State Consent -- 4 Complementarity -- 5 Proprio Motu Powers of the ICC Prosecutor -- 6 Crimes against Humanity and War Crimes -- 7 The Security Council and the ICC -- 8 Conclusions.
Sommario/riassunto	This book focuses on the evolving relationship between China and the International Criminal Court (ICC). It examines the substantive issues that have restricted China's engagement with the ICC to date, and provides a comprehensive assessment of whether these Chinese concerns still constitute a significant impediment to China's accession to the ICC in the years to come. The book places the China-ICC relationship within the wider context of China's interactions with international judicial bodies, and uses the ICC as an example to reflect China's engagement with international institutions and global governance in general. It seeks to offer a thought-provoking resource to international law and international relations scholars, legal practitioners, government legal advisers, and policy-makers about the nature, scope, and consequences of the relationship between China and the ICC, as well as its impact on both global governance and order. This book is the first of its kind to explore China's engagement with the ICC primarily from a legal perspective.

---