

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910369912203321
Autore	Dabene Olivier
Titolo	Street Art and Democracy in Latin America // by Olivier Dabène
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cham : , : Springer International Publishing : , : Imprint : Palgrave Macmillan, , 2020
ISBN	9783030269135 3030269132
Edizione	[1st ed. 2020.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (XVII, 261 p. 22 illus., 10 illus. in color.)
Collana	Studies of the Americas
Disciplina	320.4 306.47098
Soggetti	America - Politics and government Comparative government International relations American Politics Comparative Politics International Relations Theory
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	Chapter 1: Introduction -- Chapter 2: Analytical framework -- Chapter 3: Bogota. Public space between appropriation and deliberation -- Chapter 4: São Paulo. Pixadores' public scream of hate -- Chapter 5: Valparaíso. A tale of murals, tags and world heritage -- Chapter 6: Oaxaca. Revolutionary art and the (difficult) quest for democracy -- Chapter 7: Havana. Going public, no matter what -- Chapter 8: Conclusion. Street art and democracy. Lessons learned.
Sommario/riassunto	"This book is a striking example of the 'cultural turn' that has gained momentum as more orthodox approaches to the study of democracy have displayed their limitations. Olivier Dabène demonstrates convincingly that this is a buoyant, widespread and influential counterpart to the sub-continent's more recognized outlets of political-cum-artistic expression. These innovations are particularly vivid and provocative in the five Latin American cities he has studied. The author brings to life an impressive range of talented young street artists, and helps the reader to appreciate both their distinctive histories and their collective interactions." -Laurence Whitehead, Senior Research Fellow, Politics, Nuffield College, Oxford University, UK This book explores street art's contributions to democracy in Latin America through a comparative study of five cities: Bogota (Colombia), São Paulo (Brazil), Valparaiso (Chile), Oaxaca (Mexico) and Havana (Cuba). The author argues that when artists invade public space for the sake of disseminating rage, claims or statements, they behave as urban citizens who try to raise public awareness, nurture public debates and hold authorities accountable. Street art also reveals how public space is governed. When local authorities try to contain, regulate or repress public space invasions, they can achieve their goals democratically if they dialogue with the artists and try to reach a consensus inspired by a conception of the city as a commons. Under specific conditions, the book argues, street level democracy and collaborative governance can overlap, prompting a democratization of democracy. Olivier Dabène is Professor of Political Science at the Paris Institute of Political Studies (Sciences Po). He is also Senior Researcher at the Center for International Studies (CERI) and President of the Political Observatory of Latin America and the Caribbean (OPALC), both at Sciences Po, France. .
