   Sommario/riassunto   It is our great pleasure to welcome you to the Fifteenth International Conference on Availability, Reliability, and Security (ARES 2020) in its very first all-online edition. ARES brings together researchers and practitioners in the field of availability, reliability, and computer security. The conference highlights various aspects of these, and we are happy to follow the tradition of previous editions to bring together these crucial areas of research.
