

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910433240303321
Autore	Fassin Didier
Titolo	Deepening Divides : : How Territorial Borders and Social Boundaries Delineate Our World / / Didier Fassin
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Pluto Press, 2019 London : , : Pluto Press, , 2019
ISBN	1-78680-563-4
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource
Disciplina	320.12
Soggetti	Social Science / Minority Studies Social sciences Europe
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di contenuto	What money can buy : citizenship by investment on a global scale / Kristin Surak -- Monitoring international labor precarity : the state management of migrant domestic workers / Rhacel Parrenas -- When migrants claim blood kinship : constructing hierarchies of human worth / Ayse Parla -- Family resemblances : binational marriage, Muslim "communalism," and the patriarchal state / Mayanthi Fernando -- An earlier ban : Chinese exclusion and plenary power / Mae Ngai -- Manners of exclusion : from the Asiatic Barred Zone to the Muslim ban / Sherally Munshi -- Brave new worlds : the racial regimes of the Americas / Michael Hanchard -- The outlawed : landscapes of human rights / Tugba Basaran -- Protection : sanctuary and the contested ethics of presence in the United States / Linda Bosniak -- Ruination and rebuilding : the precarious place of a border town in Gaza / Ilana Feldman -- Symmetry and affinity : comparing borders and border-making processes in Africa / Paul Nugent.
Sommario/riassunto	At a glance, 'borders' and 'boundaries' may seem synonymous. But in the real (geopolitical) world, they coexist as distinct, albeit overlapping entities: the former a state's delimitation of territory; the latter the social delineation of differences. The refugee crisis in Europe showed how racial and ethnic boundaries are often instrumentalised to justify the strengthening of state borders - regardless of the cost in human life. But there are other, less tragic, examples that illustrate this overlapping as well, and ultimately demonstrate that the oft-differentiated spheres of borders and boundaries are best understood through their relationship to one another. Deepening Divides explores this relationship from many distinct perspectives and national contexts, with case studies covering five continents and drawing on anthropology, gender studies, law, political science and sociology for a truly interdisciplinary collection.

---