

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910438062703321
Autore	Sgarbi Marco
Titolo	The Aristotelian tradition and the rise of British empiricism : logic and epistemology in the British Isles (1570-1689) // Marco Sgarbi
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York, : Springer, 2013
ISBN	1-283-69811-0 94-007-4951-1
Edizione	[1st ed. 2013.]
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (263 p.)
Collana	Studies in history and philosophy of science, , 0929-6425 ; ; v. 22
Disciplina	146.44094109032
Soggetti	Philosophy, British - 16th century Philosophy, British - 17th century Empiricism Empiricism - History
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	1 Introduction -- 2 Logic in the British Isles during the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries -- 3 Logic in the Universities of the British Isles -- 4 Zabarella's Empiricism 5 Early Aristotelianism between Humanism and Ramism -- the British School 7 Continental Aristotelians in the British Isles -- 8 The Empiricism of the Seventeenth-Century Aristotelianism -- 9. The Reformers of Aristotelian Logic -- 10 Late Seventeenth-Century Aristotelianism -- 11 Conclusion -- Bibliography. -Index.
Sommario/riassunto	This book is a radical reappraisal of the importance of Aristotelianism in Britain. Using a full range of manuscripts as well as printed sources, it provides an entirely new interpretation of the impact of the early-modern Aristotelian tradition upon the rise of British Empiricism, and reexamines the fundamental shift from a humanist logic to epistemology and facultative logic. The task is to reconstruct the philosophical background and framework in which the thought of philosophers such Locke, Berkeley and Hume originated: some aspects of their empiricism can be explained only in reference to the academic Aristotelian tradition, even if these authors established themselves as anti-scholastic, anti-Aristotelian philosophers outside the official institutions.

---