

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910449698003321
Autore	Gershoni I.
Titolo	Egypt, Islam, and the Arabs : the search for Egyptian nationhood, 1900-1930 // Israel Gershoni and James P. Jankowski
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York, New York ; ; Oxford, [England] : , : Oxford University Press, , 1986 ©1986
ISBN	1-280-43950-5 0-19-536486-4 1-60129-606-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (365 p.)
Collana	Studies in Middle Eastern History
Disciplina	320.5/4/0962
Soggetti	Nationalism - Egypt Electronic books. Egypt Politics and government 1882-1952 Egypt Relations Arab countries Arab countries Relations Egypt
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	"In cooperation with the Dayan Center and the Shiloah Institute for Middle Eastern and African Studies, Tel Aviv University."
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Introduction: Nationalist Tendencies in Egypt, 1900-1914; 1. Egyptians, Ottomans, and Arabs during World War I; 2. The Revolution of 1919 and Its Aftermath: The Apotheosis of Egyptian Nationalism; 3. Egypt and the Caliphate Question, 1924-1926; 4. Egyptian Intellectuals and the Formation of a New National Image; 5. The Egyptian Nationalist Image of the Arabs; 6. The Egyptianist Image of Egypt: I. Environment and the Nation; 7. The Egyptianist Image of Egypt: II. Toward an Egyptian Territorial History; 8. The Egyptianist Image of Egypt: III. Pharaonicism 9. The Egyptianist Image of Egypt: IV. Toward an Egyptian National Literature 10. Egypt and the Arab World in the 1920's; 11. ""Easternism"" in Egypt in the 1920's; Conclusion: The Triumph of Egyptianism; Notes; Bibliography; Index;
Sommario/riassunto	In this study of the development of Egyptian nationalism during the early part of this century, the authors argue that it was slow to evolve because Islam constituted both a religious and a political community that did not recognize territorial boundaries.

---