

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910450053303321
Autore	McAllester Matthew <1969->
Titolo	Beyond the Mountains of the Damned [[electronic resource]] : the war inside Kosovo // Matthew McAllester
Pubbl/distr/stampa	New York, : New York University Press, c2002
ISBN	0-8147-6438-X
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (240 p.)
Disciplina	949.7103
Soggetti	Kosovo War, 1998-1999 Electronic books. Peje (Kosovo) History, Military 20th century
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 225).
Nota di contenuto	""Cover Page""; ""Title Page""; ""Copyright Page""; ""Dedication""; ""Contents""; ""Acknowledgments""; ""Introduction""; ""1. One Town, Two Lives""; ""2. The Ghosts of Kula Pass""; ""3. Staying Behind""; ""4. The Serbian Canterbury""; ""5. The Friendly Lion and the KLA""; ""6. In the Trunk of a Gray BMW""; ""7. Coffee with Zejnepe""; ""8. Burning""; ""9. Agreements""; ""10. The Illyrian Wolves""; ""11. A Silent Town""; ""12. The Killing""; ""13. A White Plastic Bag in the Long Grass""; ""14. New Roofs, New Coffins""; ""15. The Butcher's Business""; ""Bibliography""; ""About the Author""
Sommario/riassunto	Winner, Publishers Weekly Best Books of 2002, Non-Fiction For every survivor of a crime, there is a criminal who forces his way into the victim's thoughts long after the act has been committed. Reporters weren't allowed into Kosovo during the war without the permission of the Yugoslavian government but Matthew McAllester went anyway. In Beyond the Mountains of the Damned he tells the story of Pec, Kosovo's most destroyed city and the site of the earliest and worst atrocities of the war, through the lives of two men-one Serb and one Kosovar. They had known each other, and been neighbors for