

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910450063003321
Autore	Flamming Douglas
Titolo	Bound for freedom [[electronic resource] ] : Black Los Angeles in Jim Crow America / / Douglas Flamming
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Berkeley, : University of California Press, c2005
ISBN	1-282-35873-1 9786612358739 0-520-94028-8 1-59734-508-3
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (518 p.)
Disciplina	979.4/9400496073
Soggetti	African Americans - California - Los Angeles - History - 19th century African Americans - California - Los Angeles - History - 20th century African Americans - Civil rights - California - Los Angeles - History Community life - California - Los Angeles - History - 19th century Community life - California - Los Angeles - History - 20th century Civil rights movements - California - Los Angeles - History - 19th century Civil rights movements - California - Los Angeles - History - 20th century Electronic books. Los Angeles (Calif.) Race relations
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	"George Gund Foundation imprint in African American studies".
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 427-438) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Front matter -- Contents -- Maps -- Acknowledgments -- Introduction -- Arrival -- 1. Southern Roots, Western Dreams -- 2. The Conditions of Heaven -- 3. Claiming Central Avenue -- 4. A Civic Engagement -- 5. Politics and Patriotism -- 6. Fighting Spirit in the 1920's -- 7. The Business of Race -- 8. Surging Down Central Avenue -- 9. Responding to the Depression -- 10. Race and New Deal Liberalism -- Departure -- Notes -- Selected Bibliography -- Index
Sommario/riassunto	Paul Bontemps decided to move his family to Los Angeles from Louisiana in 1906 on the day he finally submitted to a strictly enforced

Southern custom-he stepped off the sidewalk to allow white men who had just insulted him to pass by. Friends of the Bontemps family, like many others beckoning their loved ones West, had written that Los Angeles was "a city called heaven" for people of color. But just how free was Southern California for African Americans? This splendid history, at once sweeping in its historical reach and intimate in its evocation of everyday life, is the first full account of Los Angeles's black community in the half century before World War II. Filled with moving human drama, it brings alive a time and place largely ignored by historians until now, detailing African American community life and political activism during the city's transformation from small town to sprawling metropolis. Writing with a novelist's sensitivity to language and drawing from fresh historical research, Douglas Flamming takes us from Reconstruction to the Jim Crow era, through the Great Migration, the Roaring Twenties, the Great Depression, and the build-up to World War II. Along the way, he offers rich descriptions of the community and its middle-class leadership, the women who were front and center with men in the battle against racism in the American West. In addition to drawing a vivid portrait of a little-known era, Flamming shows that the history of race in Los Angeles is crucial for our understanding of race in America. The civil rights activism in Los Angeles laid the foundation for critical developments in the second half of the century that continue to influence us to this day.

---