

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910450278703321
Autore	Brubaker Rogers <1956->
Titolo	Citizenship and nationhood in France and Germany [[electronic resource] /] / Rogers Brubaker
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cambridge, MA, : Harvard University Press, 1992
ISBN	0-674-02894-5
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (xii, 270 p.)
Disciplina	323.60943
Soggetti	Citizenship - France Naturalization - France Nationalism - France - History Citizenship - Germany Naturalization - Germany Nationalism - Germany - History Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Bibliographic Level Mode of Issuance: Monograph
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 245-265) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Frontmatter -- Contents -- Preface -- Introduction: Traditions of Nationhood in France and Germany -- I. THE INSTITUTION OF CITIZENSHIP -- 1. Citizenship as Social Closure -- 2. The French Revolution and the Invention of National Citizenship -- 3. State, State-System, and Citizenship in Germany -- II. DEFINING THE CITIZENRY: THE BOUNDS OF BELONGING -- 4. Citizenship and Naturalization in France and Germany -- 5. Migrants into Citizens: The Crystallization of Jus Soli in Late-Nineteenth-Century France -- 6. The Citizenry as Community of Descent: The Nationalization of Citizenship in Wilhelmine Germany -- 7. "Etre Français, Cela se Mérite": Immigration and the Politics of Citizenship in France in the 1980s -- 8. Continuities in the German Politics of Citizenship -- Conclusion -- Notes -- Bibliography -- Index
Sommario/riassunto	Focusing on the origins of citizenship in France and Germany and their different definitions of citizenship (French territorial basis and German blood descent emphasis), this text examines two fundamental legal principles of national citizenship and explores the constitution of the modern state.
