1.	Record Nr.	UNINA9910450292403321
	Autore	MacDonald James D (James David), <1940->
	Titolo	Communicating partners [[electronic resource]] : 30 years of building responsive relationships with late-talking children including autism, Asperger's syndrome (ASD), Down syndrome, and typical development developmental guides for professionals and parents / / James D. MacDonald
	Pubbl/distr/stampa	Philadelphia, : Jessica Kingsley Publishers, c2004
	ISBN	1-280-26679-1
		9786610266791
		1-4237-1006-1
		1-84642-036-9
	Edizione	[1st American pbk. ed.]
	Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (338 p.)
	Disciplina	618.92/85506
	Soggetti	Asperger's syndrome - Patients - Language
		Autistic children - Language
		Communicative disorders in children - Treatment
		Developmentally disabled children - Language
		Down syndrome - Patients - Language
		Language acquisition - Parent participation
		Language disorders in children - Treatment
		Parent and child
		Electronic books.
	Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
	Formato	Materiale a stampa
	Livello bibliografico	Monografia
	Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
	Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
	Nota di contenuto	Communicating Partners; Contents; Preface; Introduction; Part 1 Introduction to the Model; 1 The 30-Year Journey with 1000 Children: How Communicating Partners Came About; 2 Guiding Principles; 3 Key Features of Communicating Partners and Contrasts with Traditional Approaches to Autism and Other Language Disorders; 4 Examples of Children Studied for this Book; 5 Theoretical Foundations for Communicating Partners; 6 Basic Components of Communicating Partners: Five Developmental Stages and Five Relationship Strategies;

Sommario/riassunto	The program focuses on five key stages of communication development - interactive play, nonverbal communication, social language, conversation, and civil behaviour - and five life-long responsive strategies to use every day to build relationships within the child's own world.