

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910450835203321
Titolo	How free is the radio spectrum? [[electronic resource]] : guest editors: Erik Bohlin, Brigitte Preissel and Arnd Weber
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Bradford, England, : Emerald Group Publishing, c2006
ISBN	1-280-70568-X 9786610705689 1-84544-951-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (97 p.)
Collana	info, the journal of policy, regulation and strategy for telecommunications, information and media ; ; 8, no. 2
Altri autori (Persone)	BohlinErik PreisselBrigitte WeberArnd
Disciplina	384.54
Soggetti	Radio broadcasting Radio frequency allocation Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di contenuto	Cover; Table of contents; Guest editorial; Spectrum for the next radio revolution: the economic and technical case for collective use; The radio spectrum: opportunities and challenges for the developing world; Policy issues in spectrum trading; The social value of TV band spectrum in European countries; Secondary use of spectrum: a survey of the issues; Spectrum governance regimes: efficiency properties and policy choices
Sommario/riassunto	New technologies provide new opportunities for radio spectrum allocation and frequency use. This e-book covers areas such as spectrum trading, secondary use of spectrum, spectrum becoming available through digital TV, license-exempt use and the related issues of welfare maximisation and international co-ordination.