

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910451072903321
Autore	Schulkin Jay
Titolo	Bodily sensibility [[electronic resource]] : intelligent action / / Jay Schulkin
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Oxford ; New York, : Oxford University Press, c2004
ISBN	1-280-48206-0 0-19-534874-5 1-4237-4583-3
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (201 p.)
Collana	Series in affective science
Disciplina	150
Soggetti	Mind and body Cognition Human information processing Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 137-177) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Contents; Introduction; Chapter 1 Bodily Representations, Behavior, and the Brain; Chapter 2 Demythologizing the Emotions; Chapter 3 Aesthetic Judgment, Discrepancy, and Inquiry; Chapter 4 Moral Sensibility and Social Cohesion; Chapter 5 Drives and Explanations; Conclusion: Corporeal Representations; Notes; References; Index
Sommario/riassunto	Schulkin presents neuroscientific research demonstrating that thought is not on one side and bodily sensibility on the other; biologically, they are integrated. Schulkin argues that this integration has implications for judgements about art and music, attraction and revulsion, and the perpetual inclination to explain ourselves and our surroundings.