

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910451343203321
Titolo	Japan's changing generations [[electronic resource]] : are young people creating a new society? // edited by Gordon Mathews and Bruce White
Pubbl/distr/stampa	London ; ; New York, : RoutledgeCurzon, 2004
ISBN	1-280-05772-6 0-203-38935-2 0-203-31662-2
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (219 p.)
Collana	Japan anthropology workshop series
Altri autori (Persone)	MathewsGordon WhiteBruce <1974->
Disciplina	305.235/0952
Soggetti	Youth - Japan Young adults - Japan Conflict of generations - Japan Electronic books. Japan Social conditions 1945-
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Cover; Japan's Changing Generations: Are young people creating a new society?; Copyright; Contents; Contributors; Series editor's preface; Acknowledgments; Introduction:Changing generations in Japan today; Part IThe Japanese generational divide; 1 The generation gap in Japanese society since the 1960s; 2 Why are Japanese youth today so passive?; 3 The local roots of global citizenship: Generational change in a Kyushu hamlet; Part IIHow teenagers cope with the adult world; 4 How Japanese teenagers cope: Social pressures and personal responses; 5 Youth fashion and changing beautification practices 6 "Guiding" Japan's university students through the generation gap Part IIIHow young adults challenge the social order; 7 Seeking a career, finding a job: How young people enter and resist the Japanese world of work; 8 Mothers and their unmarried daughters: An intimate look at generational change; 9 What happens when they come back: How Japanese young people with foreign university degree experience the Japanese workplace; 10 Centered selves and life choices: Changing attitudes of young educated mothers; Epilogue: Are Japanese young people creating a new society?; Index

Sommario/riassunto

This book argues that 'the generation gap' in Japan is something more than young people resisting the adult social order before entering and conforming to that order. Rather, it signifies something more fundamental: the emergence of a new Japan, which may be quite different from the Japan of postwar decades. It argues that while young people in Japan in their teens, twenties and early thirties are not engaged in overt social or political resistance, they are turning against the existing Japanese social order, whose legitimacy has been undermined by the past decade of economic downturn. The boo
