- Sommario/riassunto Ce document presente les differentes mesures d'allegement de la dette dont le Niger a beneficie depuis 1983. Possedant une dette importante a l'egard des banques commerciales, du fait du developpement de l'exploitation de l'uranium, le Niger a eu recours a la fois au Club de Paris et au Club de Londres pour reechelonner regulierement sa dette publique. Hormis ces procédures traditionnelles, le Niger a été le premier pays à bénéficier du Fonds de désendettement de l'IDA pour racheter sa dette bancaire avec décote grâce à des dons. Malgré l'allègement issu de cette opération et celui résultant de l'application des termes de Toronto par le Club de Paris, qui en 1991 représentaient l'allègement de la dette maximal auquel le Niger pouvait prétendre par les procédures usuelles, le gouvernement nigérien ne peut s'acquitter de ses obligations. La politique d'ajustement entreprise et en particulier la tentative d'assainissement des finances publiques, n'ont pas permis de rétablir l'équilibre.
