

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910452673103321
Autore	Shinohara Hatsue
Titolo	US international lawyers in the interwar years : a forgotten crusade // Hatsue Shinohara [[electronic resource]]
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Cambridge : , : Cambridge University Press, , 2012
ISBN	1-139-88864-1 1-139-56439-0 1-139-55579-0 1-139-06107-0 1-139-55208-2 1-139-55454-9 1-139-54958-8 1-283-63829-0 1-139-55083-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (xi, 248 pages) : digital, PDF file(s)
Disciplina	341.023/73
Soggetti	Lawyers - United States - History Practice of law - United States - History International law - United States - History
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Title from publisher's bibliographic system (viewed on 05 Oct 2015).
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	The rise of a new international law -- Towards a more ambitious international law -- Can international law master war? -- Half-victory : international law and the Manchurian incident -- For better or for worse : the debate over neutrality -- International law in a lawless world -- Reconstructing the world order once again.
Sommario/riassunto	In the interwar years, a group of reform-minded American scholars of international law, such as Quincy Wright and Manley Hudson, challenged traditional international law and strove to establish a 'new' international law in which outlawry of war was institutionalized. They highly valued the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Kellogg-Briand Pact and presented legal arguments in support of them. These scholars were activists in their efforts to promote their views to policy makers and the public. In the US international law community, however, a different group of scholars, notably Edwin Borchard, vehemently opposed the progressive scholars. US International Lawyers in the Interwar Years chronicles those involved in the debate and provides a detailed account of their scholarly works and activities that hitherto have not had the recognition that they deserve.

---