

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910453353203321
Autore	Andelson Robert V
Titolo	Imputed rights [[electronic resource]] : an essay in Christian social theory // Robert V. Andelson
Pubbl/distr/stampa	London, : Shephard-Walwyn (Publishers) Ltd., 2010
ISBN	0-85683-278-2 0-85683-340-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (193 p.)
Disciplina	260
Soggetti	Christian sociology Religion - Social aspects Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	pt. 1. The foundations of human rights -- pt. 2. The community of covenant.
Sommario/riassunto	Thoughtful and informative, this essay is an analysis of the basis and nature of human rights. Arguing that human rights is an issue that is often invoked but seldom intelligently considered, this record examines concrete, immediate, moral, and social issues, including birth control, taxation, welfare, private behavior, and military service. Noting the inadequacies of non-Christian positions?such as the radical-humanist, utilitarian, and self-realization approaches?this account develops an original thesis in which the absolute ground for rights is the will and grace of God.