

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910453387603321
Titolo	Language and learning in the international university [[electronic resource]] : from English uniformity to diversity and hybridity / / edited by Bent Preisler, Ida Klitgard and Anne H. Fabricius
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Bristol ; ; Buffalo, : Multilingual Matters, 2011
ISBN	1-283-22474-7 1-84769-415-2 1-84769-413-6 1-84769-509-4
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (xxi, 248 p.) : ill
Collana	Languages for intercultural communication and education ; ; 21
Altri autori (Persone)	PreislerBent <1945-> KlitgardIda FabriciusAnne H
Disciplina	428.0071/1
Soggetti	English language - Study and teaching - Foreign speakers Second language acquisition Language and culture Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references.
Nota di contenuto	pt. 1. English as a lingua franca for higher education teaching and learning -- pt. 2. When the official lingua franca happens to be the first language of the majority : the case of the United Kingdom -- pt. 3. The construction of international perspectives in 'international' student group work -- pt. 4. Academic writing and literacy in a transnational perspective -- pt. 5. East and west at the International University.
Sommario/riassunto	This book views the international university as a microcosm of a world where internationalization does not equate with across-the-board use of English, but rather with the practice of linguistic and cultural diversity, even in the face of Anglophone dominance. The globalization-localization continuum manifests itself in every university trying to adopt internationalization strategies. The many cases of language and learning issues presented in this book, from universities representing different parts of the world, are all manifestations of a multidimensional space encompassing local vs. global, diversification vs. Anglicization. The internationalization of universities represents a new cultural and linguistic hybridity with the potential to develop new forms of identities unfettered by traditional 'us-and-them' binary thinking, and a new open-mindedness about the roles of self and others, resulting in new patterns of communicative (educational and social) practices.
