1.	Record Nr.	UNINA9910454741103321
	Autore	Biesecker Barbara A
	Titolo	Addressing postmodernity [[electronic resource]] : Kenneth Burke, rhetoric, and a theory of social change / / Barbara A. Biesecker
	Pubbl/distr/stampa	Tuscaloosa, : University of Alabama Press, c1997
	ISBN	0-8173-8259-3
	Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (138 p.)
	Collana	Studies in rhetoric and communication
	Disciplina	801.95092 809.9113 809/.9113
	Soggetti	Postmodernism (Literature) Rhetoric Literature and society Literature, Modern - 20th century - History and criticism Electronic books.
	Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
	Formato	Materiale a stampa
	Livello bibliografico	Monografia
	Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
	Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. 103-120) and index.
	Nota di contenuto	Contents; Acknowledgments; 1. Entering the Fray; 2. Reading Ontology in A Grammar of Motives; 3. A Rhetoric of Motives, or Toward an Ontology of the Social; 4. Further Speculations on the Dialectic: The Rhetoric of Religion; 5. From Communicative Action to Rhetorical Invention; Notes; Works Cited; Index
	Sommario/riassunto	Biesecker reveals the full range of Kenneth Burke's contribution to the possibility of social change.In Addressing Postmodernity, Barbara Biesecker examines the relationship between rhetoric and social change and the ways human beings transform social relations through the purposeful use of symbols. In discerning the conditions of possibility for social transformation and the role of human beings and rhetoric in it, Biesecker turns to the seminal work of Kenneth Burke.Through a close reading of Burke's major works, A Grammar of Motives, A Rhetoric of M