

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910454806903321
Autore	Caforio Giuseppe
Titolo	Advances in military sociology [[electronic resource]] : essays in honor of Charles C. Moskos // Giuseppe Caforio
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Bingley, UK, : Emerald, 2009
ISBN	1-282-50004-X 9786612500046 1-84855-893-7
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (595 p.)
Collana	Contributions to conflict management, peace economics and development ; ; v. 12B
Disciplina	306.27
Soggetti	Sociology, Military Women soldiers Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Front cover; Advances in Military Sociology: Essays in Honor of Charles C. Moskos; Copyright page; Contents; List of contributors; Foreword; Introduction; 1. Foreword; 2. Contents of the book; 3. Collaborations and acknowledgments; Notes; References; Part I: The Military Profession in Transition: Conscription and all Volunteer Forces; Chapter 1. End of conscription and problems of manning: The case of Slovenian Armed Forces; Chapter 2. Managing diversity in all-volunteer forces: Theoretical perspectives, institutional assessment and policy implications Chapter 3. General conscription in Finland after 2008 - some reasons behind Finland's population's and conscripts' attitudes towards general conscription Chapter 4. Changes in military profession in Latin American countries; Part II: Public Opinion and Security Issues; Chapter 5. Slovene public opinion about security issues: A coincidence or a consistent pattern?; Chapter 6 . Institutionalising European defence: Main trends in European public perceptions in the age of the global war on terror Chapter 7. Between alliance and home front considerations: The German armed forces and security-related opinion polls Part III: Women in the Military Profession and Military Families; Chapter 8. Women in conflictual situations in the war-torn Darfur, Sudan: An exposition; Chapter 9. Gender integration policies in the armed forces: A double-edged sword?; Chapter 10. Women in the military profession: The Greek case; Chapter 11. Thirty years of gender integration: cadet perceptions of women at the U.S. Air force academy

Chapter 12. Parents' voice: The intergenerational relationship, worry, appraisal of the deployment, and support among parents of deployed personnel
Chapter 13. Military families and deployments abroad in Italy. In search of adequate answers for a new issue; Part IV. The Military in the Asian Context; Chapter 14. Pakistani military's role in the Asian context; Chapter 15. Military educational institutions and their role in the reproduction of inequality in the Philippines; Chapter 16. A basis of Mongolian defense policy and armed forces for self-defense
Chapter 17. Foreign aid, war/military, and state building of cold war Taiwan: in search of a theoretical and comparative framework
Chapter 18. From military professionalism to coup d'etat: Concordance theory in India and Pakistan; Chapter 19. Whose job, what job? Security sector performance in a local Communist frontline in central Philippines; Chapter 20. EU harmonisation reforms, democratisation and a new modality of civil-military relations in Turkey; Chapter 21. The convergence and divergence in perceptions of security issues By military professionals and civilians in South Korea
Chapter 22. Civil-military relations of modern Korea: From a patriarchal army to a professional army

Sommario/riassunto

There could be no better homage to recently deceased sociologist Charles C. Moskos than dedicating to him this selection of the papers presented at RC01's international conference in Seoul (July 2008). It offers an up-to-date view of the panorama of social studies on armed forces and conflict resolution in a context of fast-moving change that renders many preceding theoretical provisions obsolete. Just to cite two aspects of this change, one can point first of all to how the presented studies move beyond the very concept of globalization, after which the conference had been named.
