

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910456953503321
Autore	Baird Nancy Disher
Titolo	Healing Kentucky [[electronic resource] ] : medicine in the Bluegrass State // Nancy Disher Baird
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Lexington, Ky., : University Press of Kentucky, c2007
ISBN	0-8131-3790-X 1-283-23238-3 9786613232380 0-8131-2629-0
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (63 p.)
Collana	New books for new readers
Disciplina	362.109769 600
Soggetti	Medicine - Kentucky - History - 19th century Medicine - Kentucky - History - 20th century Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references.
Nota di contenuto	Front cover; Copyright; Contents; Foreword; Acknowledgments; Introduction; 1. She Lived!; 2. They Died Faster Than Coffins Could Be Made; 3. It's a Wonder That Anyone Survived; 4. No One Should Live in Filth; 5. He Had Red Sore Eyes and Is Blind; 6. Viruses Among Us; 7. It's the Law; 8. It Struck Fear in Every Parent's Heart; 9. You Could Die of Dog Smell; 10. Fixed Her Face; 11. Sounds Like Science Fiction; Final Comments; About the Author
Sommario/riassunto	From the pioneering Danville surgeon Ephraim McDowell, the first doctor to successfully perform abdominal surgery, and Luke Blackburn, dubbed the ""Hero of Hickman"" and elected governor in 1879 after his efforts to combat yellow fever, to contemporary Kentucky doctors performing groundbreaking reconstructive surgery and artificial heart implants, Healing Kentucky tells the story of the two-hundred-year struggle to provide good health care to all Kentuckians. Nancy Disher Baird describes Lexington schoolteacher Linda Neville's mission to treat the eye disease trachoma in rural Kentucky, Lou

