

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910457310003321
Autore	Domhoff G. William
Titolo	Class and power in the New Deal [[electronic resource] ] : corporate moderates, southern Democrats, and the liberal-labor coalition / / G. William Domhoff and Michael J. Webber
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Stanford, Calif., : Stanford University Press, 2011
ISBN	0-8047-7902-3
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (304 p.)
Collana	Studies in social inequality
Altri autori (Persone)	WebberMichael J
Disciplina	973.917
Soggetti	New Deal, 1933-1939 Electronic books. United States Politics and government 1933-1945 United States Economic policy 1933-1945 United States Social policy
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	The power actors -- The Agricultural Adjustment Act -- The National Labor Relations Act -- The Social Security Act -- Aftermath and implementation -- The shortcomings of alternative theories of the New Deal.
Sommario/riassunto	Class and Power in the New Deal provides a new perspective on the origins and implementation of the three most important policies that emerged during the New Deal—the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the National Labor Relations Act, and the Social Security Act. It reveals how Northern corporate moderates, representing some of the largest fortunes and biggest companies of that era, proposed all three major initiatives and explores why there were no viable alternatives put forward by the opposition. More generally, this book analyzes the seeming paradox of policy support and political opposition. The authors seek to demonstrate the superiority of class dominance theory over other perspectives—historical institutionalism, Marxism, and protest-disruption theory—in explaining the origins and development of these three policy initiatives. Domhoff and Webber draw on extensive new archival research to develop a fresh interpretation of this seminal period of American government and social policy development.

---