Record Nr. UNINA9910457545203321 Law as punishment/law as regulation [[electronic resource] /] / edited Titolo by Austin Sarat, Lawrence Douglas, Martha Merrill Umphrey Pubbl/distr/stampa Stanford, Calif.,: Stanford Law Books, 2011 ISBN 0-8047-8211-3 Descrizione fisica 1 online resource (201 p.) Collana Amherst series in law, jurisprudence, and social thought Altri autori (Persone) SaratAustin DouglasLawrence UmphreyMartha Merrill Disciplina 345/.077 Soggetti Punishment Criminal law - Philosophy Punishment - United States Criminal law - United States - Philosophy Electronic books. Lingua di pubblicazione Inglese Formato Materiale a stampa Livello bibliografico Monografia Description based upon print version of record. Note generali Includes bibliographical references and index. Nota di bibliografia Nota di contenuto On the blurred boundaries of punishment and regulation / Austin Sarat, Lawrence Douglas and Martha Merrill Umphrey -- Regulatory and legal aspects of penality / Markus D. Dubber -- Rights within the social contract: Rousseau on punishment / Corey Brettschneider -- Collateral consequences and the perils of categorical ambiguity / Alec C. Ewald --In the prison of the mind: punishment, social order, and selfregulation / Susanna Lee -- Stop and frisk : sex, torture, control / Paul Butler. Sommario/riassunto Law depends on various modes of classification. How an act or a person is classified may be crucial in determining the rights obtained, the procedures employed, and what understandings get attached to the act or person. Critiques of law often reveal how arbitrary its classificatory acts are, but no one doubts their power and consequence. This crucial new book considers the problem of law's physical control of persons and the ways in which this control illuminates competing visions of the law: as both a tool of regulation and an instrument of coercion or punishment. It examines various instances of punishment and regulation to illustrate points of overlap and difference between them, and captures the lived experience of the state's enterprise of subjecting human conduct to the governance of rules. Ultimately, the essays call into question the adequacy of a view of punishment and/or regulation that neglects the perspectives of those who are at the receiving end of these exercises of state power.