

|                         |  |
|-------------------------|--|
| 1. Record Nr.           | UNINA9910457910403321  |
| Autore                  | Hess Stephen   |
| Titolo                  | Through their eyes [[electronic resource] ] : foreign correspondents in the United States / / Stephen Hess   |
| Pubbl/distr/stampa      | Washington, D.C., : Brookings Institution Press, c2006   |
| ISBN                    | 97866108127521-280-81275-30-8157-3582-0  |
| Descrizione fisica      | 1 online resource (209 p.)   |
| Collana                 | Newswork ; ; 6   |
| Disciplina              | 070.4/332097309048   |
| Soggetti                | Foreign correspondentsForeign newsElectronic books.  |
| Lingua di pubblicazione | Inglese  |
| Formato                 | Materiale a stampa   |
| Livello bibliografico   | Monografia   |
| Note generali           | Description based upon print version of record.  |
| Nota di bibliografia    | Includes bibliographical references and index.   |
| Nota di contenuto       | Guide : the nature of this study and where it fits in the newswork series -- Context : what may or may not appear in the world's media -- Then : what we know about foreign correspondents in America, 1955-88 -- Who they are -- Patterns : some findings, 1999-2003 -- Irregulars : the other foreign correspondents -- Hollywood : a subject the world loves -- In America : it's not like being in any other country -- How they work -- Time : adjusting to deadliness around the world -- Contact : whereby the home office gains on foreign correspondents -- Access : who sees whom, when, and why -- Help : foreign correspondents as clients of the U.S. government -- Borrowed news and the Internet : where correspondents turn for information -- What they report -- One day : the stories and the categories that they fit in -- Now : what we know about foreign correspondents in America, the present. |
| Sommario/riassunto      | "Drawing on personal interviews and original survey research, reveals the mindset of foreign correspondents posted in the United States from a wide range of countries, and examines how foreign reporting has changed over the past 20 years"--Provided by publisher.   |

