

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910457919903321
Autore	Hunter James Davison <1955->
Titolo	Is there a culture war? [[electronic resource]] : a dialogue on values and American public life // James Davison Hunter, Alan Wolfe
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Washington, D.C., : Pew Research Center, : Brookings Institution Press, c2006
ISBN	0-8157-9518-1
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (133 p.)
Collana	Pew Forum dialogue series on religion and public life
Altri autori (Persone)	WolfeAlan <1942->
Disciplina	973.92
Soggetti	Culture conflict - United States Religion and politics - United States Cultural pluralism - United States Electronic books. United States Civilization 1970-
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references and index.
Nota di contenuto	Introduction: Modernist, Orthodox, or flexidox? Why the culture war debate endures / E.J. Dionne and Michael Cromartie -- The enduring culture war / James Davison Hunter -- The culture war that never came / Alan Wolfe -- Comment: the other culture war / Gertrude Himmelfarb -- Comment: further reflections on the culture war thesis / Morris P. Fiorina -- A response / James Davison Hunter -- A response / Alan Wolfe.
Sommario/riassunto	Red and Blue states . . . the "Religious Right" and the "Liberal Media" . . . NASCAR dads and soccer moms . . . Is America clearly and bitterly divided? Are today's social and political differences truly worrisome, or the unavoidable products of a diverse democracy? In Is There a Culture War? two leading authorities on political culture lead a provocative examination of division and unity within America.