

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910458942503321
Autore	Honeyman Katrina
Titolo	Child workers in England, 1780-1820 [[electronic resource] ] : parish apprentices and the making of the early industrial labour force / / Katrina Honeyman
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Aldershot, England ; ; Burlington, VT, : Ashgate, c2007
ISBN	1-317-16794-5 1-281-20836-1 9786611208363 0-7546-8669-8
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (355 p.)
Collana	Studies in labour history
Disciplina	331.3/18
Soggetti	Child labor - England - History - 18th century Child labor - England - History - 19th century Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di bibliografia	Includes bibliographical references (p. [293]-323) and index.
Nota di contenuto	Industrial change in England 1780-1820 -- The Poor Law and the parish apprentice -- Factory apprenticeship : structure, process and legislation -- The supply and distribution of parish apprentices -- Textile enterprise and the parish apprentice -- The costs and benefits of parish apprenticeship -- Parish factory apprenticeship and the nature of work -- The making of a gendered labour force? -- The exploitation of little children -- The voices of the children -- The protection of parish apprentices -- The neglect of parish apprentices -- Conclusion -- Appendix -- Bibliography.
Sommario/riassunto	A major contribution to studies in child labour, this book explores the contribution of child workers and the particular importance of the parish apprenticeship system to early industrial expansion.