

1. Record Nr.	UNINA9910459483603321
Autore	Kamarck Elaine C
Titolo	Primary Politics [[electronic resource]] : How Presidential Candidates Have Shaped the Modern Nominating System
Pubbl/distr/stampa	Washington, : Brookings Institution Press, 2009
ISBN	0-8157-0380-5
Descrizione fisica	1 online resource (232 p.)
Disciplina	324.0973
Soggetti	Presidential candidates -- United States Presidents -- United States -- Nomination Electronic books.
Lingua di pubblicazione	Inglese
Formato	Materiale a stampa
Livello bibliografico	Monografia
Note generali	Description based upon print version of record.
Nota di contenuto	Cover; Front Matter; Table of Contents; Introduction; The Good Old Days?; Sequence as Strategy; The Fight to be First; Proportional Representation; Devil in the Details; Do Conventions Matter Anymore?; The Problem of ""The Decider""; Notes; Index
Sommario/riassunto	The 2008 presidential primaries produced more drama than many general election campaigns. John McCain overcame the near-implosion of his campaign to capture the Republican nomination by March, despite a strong challenge from quotable pastor-turned-governor Mike Huckabee. Hillary Clinton entered the Democratic race as the heavy favorite, only to fall to a first-term senator from Illinois in a battle that lasted into July. Democratic delegations from Florida and Michigan were unseated and reelected; superdelegates took to the airwaves; and millions of Americans heard of the "robot rule" for the fi